VOLUME 31, NUMBER 28 | CAMPBELL, SANTA CLARA COUNTY, CALIFORNIA | WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4, 1934

Current Comment

Spring fever assails the editorial bones, and I find it difficult to concentrate on the stern and thankless task of preparing the weekly comment.

Last week's remarks "rang the bell" in several quarters—an unusual experience for this writer.

There's just one thing that sticks in my craw, anyway, and before I lock up the office and go out looking for a nice tree to go to sleep under, I'll tell you what it is: The recently approved county ordinance against loitering and parading.

I realize that the county supervisors had the good of the community more or less at heart, hoping to stave off labor demonstrations during the fruit season by legislating against the preliminary steps to such demonstrations. I further realize that the farmer is in no position to pay a great deal of money for help, nor can he afford the losses which go hand in hand with delay in harvesting perishable fruit.

I am nevertheless ired at this barbaric touch of Hitlerism in the land of the free and the home of the brave. The chances are that the ordinances are unconstitutional; we of America are guaranteed freedom of speech—but what good is that when one's audience is requested to "move on" and there is no money with which to hire a hall?

Odd Fellows In Charge of Funeral For Thomas Phillips

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon from the Place funeral parlors in Los Gatos for Thomas E. Phillips, who was killed in an automobile accident near Brentwood Saturday morning. Phillips, and four children: Traffic Officer Ralph Phillips of Los Gatos; Mabel and Vivian Gleason of Brentwood and Laura Short of Santa Rosa, besides eight sisters and brothers. Water conservation problems were referred to the civic affairs committee, H. M. Shadle, Joe McKinnon, S. N. Hedegard and W. R. Coupland, who were requested to investigate water conditions in the district and make a comprehensive report at a future meeting.

Wills, Community Property Discussed At Club Meeting

The Country Woman's club was privileged at its meeting Monday to hear a very instructive and entertaining presentation of matters of vital interest to women, "The Making and Probating of Wills, and Community Property Laws." Mrs. Paul Alexander of Redwood City, formerly of Los Gatos, and for some years district chairman of the department of law, business and insurance for the District Federation of Women's Clubs, was the guest speaker, and was eagerly listened to and questioned during the entire time of her discussion.

The three types of wills were explained and the procedure incident to their making and execution, and what property a wife could will, and also what conditions arise when a husband dies without leaving a will.

Following Mrs. Alexander's talk Mrs. Emily Duncan of the program committee announced a violin solo by Hugh Cramer, accompanied by Jeanette Wellington. His numbers were "Love's Sorrow (Kreisler) and the popular madern song, "The Old Spinning Wheel," during the rendition of which he sang part of the air.

Mrs. Rose Hanger, chairman of the afternoon, who had introduced the speaker, announced tea at the conclusion of the music, and a pleasant social time concluded a very worthwhile afternoon.

At the business meeting preceding the program, the president, Mrs. H. C. Smith, announced the plan determined at the county federation meeting of making the first two weks of May "Student Loan Fund Weeks," during which the individual clubs will put on some effort to help raise the second half of the quota of $250 which is added to that fund yearly by the county federation.

A nominating committee to present the names of five directors to be voted upon at the annual meeting in May was selected as follows: Mrs Ralph Hyde, Mrs. Roy Archibald, Mrs. Russell Kennedy, Mrs. George Burrow and Mrs. Charlotte Sutter.

Mrs. W. I. Merrill announced that Mrs. Glasson of Palo Alto would speak at the April 16 meeting on "Modern Trend in Education."

The club room had been attractively decorated with a wealth of spring flowers, stocks, broom, wistaria, Bankia roses, and nasturtiums.

STATMENT OF C. C. YOUNG

I shall be a candidate for governor at the approaching election. Because I appreciate fully the tremendous difficulties which this office must face during the next four years, my decision has not been a hasty one. Many have been kind enough to urge that my previous term as governor has especially fitted me to serve in the present critical emergency. If this is a general belief among the voters, I feel that I am justified in seeking their support.

Today the affairs of California's state government are in a deplorable and chaotic condition. At the same time, never has there been such desperate need among the masses of our people. Except for temporary federal, aid hundreds of thousands of citizens face continued unemployment through no fault of their own. Our state institutions are over-crowded, with the result that many of their helpless wards are sleeping on the floor. Our social agencies, our humanitarian activities, our schools—everything that makes for human values should at this crisis receive the state's full support.

To meet these needs is the duty of a humane and progressive government. Until they are met we cannot have a truly prosperous state; for California was one of the first in the Union to prove that progressivism and prosperity go hand in hand. Yet at this time of our greatest necessity we face a bankrupt state treasury and an over-taxed people.

Our state government cannot longer be permitted to continue insolvent. Its budget must again be balanced. Its present enormous deficit must be wiped out. Wastage and extravagance of every kind must be stopped. With a situation of the gravest emergency in our economic life, a government which the people can trust has a most vital part in the processes of restoration.

If the voters approve, I desire to give the best that is in me toward helping to bring back such a government to California. With the co-operation of all loyal Californians, I believe it can be done.

OLDEST U. OF D. ALUMNUS DIES ON CENTENARY EVE

Information has reached the Centenary Executive committee of the University of Delaware, which is planning for the celebration of 100 years of activity of the institution, that the oldest surviving alumnus, Thomas Lumb, of Campbell, California, died in that place recently at the age of 81. Mr. Lumb was the last survivor of the class of 1874.

The venerable graduate died from a paralytic stroke at his residence in Campbell, to which place he had retired in 1919, after serving for many years in the railroad service at Red Oaks, Iowa. One year ago he returned to Red Oak on a visit, at which time he selected his pallbearers and made all arrangements for his funeral. This took place in Red Oak, as he had planned.

Born August 9, 1852, Mr. Lumb removed with his parents to Newark, Del., where his father purchased a large tract of land, subsequently divided by construction of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. Part of this tract was for years a station called Lumbrook, after the Lumb farm.

Thomas Lumb graduated from Delaware college, and then moved to the west to teach school. He married one of his pupils in Iowa, but his wife died within a few years. He then married Miss Agnes Replogle of Red Oak, Iowa, and made that town his residence until his retirement.

He leaves, besides his widow, three children by his second wife, Mrs. Hugh Tolman of Bryan, O., and Helen Lumb and Thomas Lumb Jr. of Campbell, Calif., and a son by his first marriage, Clarence Lumb of New York.

James S. Lumb, of Newark, who still resides on a part of the Lumb farm, is a nephew.—From the Newcastle County (Del.) Evening Journal of March 15, 1934.

ARMY, NAVY BLAMED BY GEN. MITCHELL FOR AIR CORPS FAILURE TO HAVE MAIL EQUIPMENT

In a devastating attack upon the branches of the United States military service, profiteering organizations and the "coal, oil and steel" interests, General William Mitchell, former director of military aviation of the U.S. Army calls army flying of the mails "one of the greatest exhibitions of American courage and ability ever given."

In Liberty Magazine General Mitchell blames "either the profiteers, who grow fat from aeonautical funds, or the armed services, with their hide bound conservatism" for preventing this country from having an up-to-date military flying organization. Some of the General's charges follow:

That modern flying equipment does not exist in the United states, either in or out of the military services.

That the Navy, in particular, was supported by the steel, oil and coal interests in thwarting aviation development.

That he was relieved from control of the air forces because the profiteers found it impossible to make money while he was in charge.

That stock manipulation, with government blessing, made a fortune of $25,000,000 for one man who started with only $275 put into the stock of an airplane motor concern.

That the Army forced the Air Corps to suffer one half of the appropriation cut, restricting Army fliers to two hours a week, practically doing away with night flying and eliminating bad weather flying.

That Army power plants were held down to 750 horsepower, while other first class countries have plants developing 2,000 and 3,000 horsepower.

That if the Army Air corps had not been stopped in its development, planes far superior to those now in use on passenger lines would have been developed and ships capable of ordinary bad weather flying at 350 miles per hour would now be a reality.

That when President Roosevelt called out the Army to carry the mails, private companies which had received millions of dollars from government subsidies, refused to cooperate in the emergency refusing radio service and leaving radio equipped planes in the hangars while obsolete equipment was used by the Army flyers.

That highly paid civil flyers who were also army reservists when asked to fly for their country during the emergency demanded full pay schedules, which it was impossible for the army to pay them.

That out of a billion dollars spent upon flying by the government only 25 per cent of that should have been received has been realized.

Although developments since the publication of the article have changed the situation to some extent, General Mitchell's charges, fraught as they are with deeply felt resentment, will have a wide audience and arouse considerable comment in flying circles and among the public generally.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

Facing common problems of the post-depression era, officers and directors of approximately 50 California farm co-operatives, handling nearly half of the state's total agricultural output, will assemble at Pomona college, April 11-13, for California's second annual Cooperative marketing conference.

The big round-table discussion of California farm problems, and more especially farm cooperative problems, will center specifically on the question of market control legislation and efforts to achieve recovery by striking a balance between supply and demand.

The conference will also serve, however, as a clearing house for mutual consent counsel and guidance on all problems of farm cooperative management, with both state and national leaders in the cooperative movement participating in the discussions.

More than 80,000 California farmers wil be represented at the three-day conference through the officers and directors of the farm co-ops which handle their products. The cooperatives participating in the conference market virtually every farm commodity grown in the state, witht a combined income ranging from $150,000 to $200,000 annually.

A feature event of the convention, bearing on future marketing policies of the California cooperatives, will be an open forum discussion of the question, "What Policies Shall Cooperatives Maintain Toward Production Control and Government Regulation?" Leading will be Chris L. Christensen, Dean of the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin. Christensen, formerly secretary of the FederalFarm Board, and, prior to that, chief of the Division of Cooperative Marketing of the United States department of agriculture, will disuss whether farmers should produce for markets both at home and abroad, or for home market only—and the relation of this problem to international horse-trading with the farmer's labor and products.

Although the great bulk of California's farm produce is marketed in the United States, about 10 per cent goes into export to foreign countries. The international problem also has a tremendous indirect influence on California trade, as the other states which buy California's "specialty products" likewise depend for their revenue in an important measure on foreign trade.

Still another major issue will be presented to the conference by C. C. Teague, president of the Agricultural council of California, the California Fruit growers exchange and the California Walnut growers association, in a discussion of the question—"Can National Marketing Agreements Do The Job Carved Out For Them?" The question of national marketing agreements for the control of the crop, including surplus, is of vital importance to every farmer, and Bruce McDaniel, counsel for the Mutual Orange distributors, will join with President Teague in presenting the many phases of the problem.

Many other problems of especial importance to farm cooperatives will be discussed during the three-day meeting, among them "The Bank for Cooperatives," with Dr. E. A. Stokdyk, president of the Berkeley Bank for Cooperatives, as the speaker; "A Financial Set-Up for Cooperatives," with J. J. Brennan, president of the California Fruit exchange, leading the discussion; an analysis of banking policies as they relate to cooperatives by Oscar Thompson, Los Angeles banker, and F. O. Wallschlaeger, secretary of the Citrus league; and a discussion of voluntary control of the lemon industry, directed by Paul S. Armstrong, manager of the California Fruit growers exchange.

The moot issue—"Must Cooperatives Come Under State Regulation?"—will be debated, with W. P. Wing, secretary of the California Wool growers association, and F. R. Wilcox of the University of California presenting the subject. Other feature events of the convention include a discussion of the California Pro-Rate act by A. J. McFadden, chairman of the California Pro-Rate commission, and consideration of the problem of whether government or the industry must control "chiselers," with Brice M. Mace, Jr., agricultural adjustment administrator, heading up the presentation.

Much of the practical value in meeting the complex problems of agriculture during the period of recovery is expected to come from the state conference and there is every indication that it will have an important bearing on the future policies of California cooperatives and the 80,000 farmers who comprise their membership.

Your Voice Can Now Span Pacific 8700-mile Direct Circuit to Java

Two islands of the Dutch East Indies became closer neighbors to the United States last February, with the opening of a direct radio telephone circuit between San Francisco and Java. Service over the new channel is available to all Bell and Bell-connecting telephones in the United States, Canada, Cuba and Mexico. At the other end it reaches the island of Sumatra as well as that of Java.

Telephone communication with the Dutch East Indies has heretofore been maintained over a circuit employing two radio channels and land lines, by way of New York, London, England, and Amsterdam, Holland.

The new direct service is established through short wave radio telephone stations of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company which handle the service to Hawaii and the Philippines. The transmitting station is at Dixon, near Sacramento, and the receiving station at Point Reyes, just north of San Francisco.

The length of the new channel is 8,700 miles. It will be the longest radio channel operated by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, being more than twice as long as those between New York and London and 1,700 miles longer than the circuit now in service between San Francisco and Manila.

"That one message was worth more to us than our telephone costs in a year."

DR. ANDERSON, MORT VENNUM NEW TRUSTEES

The "compromise" ticket went over with very little flurry at the election for high school trustees here Friday. Dr. Frank R. Anderson and Mortimor Vennum became members of the board in the most peaceful school election hereabouts in years, replacing Carl Field and Ed Wiesendanger. An extremely light vote was noted.

A few write-ins indicated an occasional voter dissatisfied with one or the other of the candidates. Among the write-ins appeared the name of Joe Gard, local liberal. When asked by a Press representative what his stand would be as a member of the high school board, Mr. Gard replied, "I would reason for a better schol, more courses, particularly of the elective variety, and the repudiation of all school district debts."

In Cambrian district slight interest in the election resulted in the dethronement of two incumbent candidates by write-ins.

Japanese Ball Club Victors

By Hall DeFraga

The veteran, Russell Hinaga, pitched his Asahi Japanese club to a 7-3 victory over Campbell Sunday. The Japs played heads-up ball for the full nine innings and readily earned their victory.

Asahi started out in the first when Yoshioka smashed out a home run with no one on. They added another in each of the fourth and fifth inning off Perusina. Quain came to the mound in the eighth and was nicked for one run in that canto and three more were added in the ninth. It is the first time Quain has played in three months and it will take him a few games to get into good shape.

The heavy stickers for Asahi were Shiraki with three singles, and Y. Kanemoto, and Yoshioka with two each. For Campbell, Tucker and Jung hit home runs, both in the ninth inning.

Russell, complete master of his curves and slow balls, had the Campbellites baffled in all but the ninth inning when Tucker and Jung just hit them too far.

The Inter-City league starts next Sunday and Richmond-Chase will be the visiting team. They won the last league series and will put up a good game.

A real estate transaction completed this week by a local broker found William Woodbury in possesion of the Ainsley house and two lots on North second street. Mr. Ainsley received in return the Woodbury home and acreage on Union avenue and San Jose-Los Gatos road.

The Campbell Chess club turned out in full force for its regular meeting which was held last week at the home of Frank H. Cutting.

The Sam Dooley family, who for some time have been occupying the Whitman cottage on Central avenue are moving this week to Salinas, where Mr. Dooley has secured a fine position. A son, attending elementary school, will remain here with friends until the close of the school term.

SEA SCOUTS ENJOY CRUISE ON S. F. BAY

Monday evening, March 26, a group of local Sea Scouts including Harry Bloom, Joe Ruscigno, Vincent Tedesco, Jerry Hecker, Arthur and Richard Eldrich, under the leadership of Bos'n Bob Burrow, sailed from their Alviso mooring for a five-day cruise in San Francisco bay.

While poking about the Oakland estuary the crew had an opportunity to participate in the filming of "Treasure Island," but due to lack of time they were obliged to refuse.

Leaving San Francisco Saturday morning the scouts sailed all the way back to the mouth of Alviso slough, at which point the engine was cut on for the rest of the way in.

The doughty sailors were transported back to Campbell by George Burrow, father of the bos'n.

H. EVANS RAIDS OPIUM DENS IN WATSONVILLE

Harry Evans, erstwhile night patrolman of Campbell, now state narcotic enforcement officer, last week conducted raids on two Watsonville dope dens.

Narcotics and paraphernalia valued at $100 were seized and one arrest was made, all other occupants of the dives having fled when officers gave warning of their approach by battering down heavily barred windows as the only means of entry.

Evans has been on the new job only a short time, but he has been very active in investigation work, has apprehended a number of addicts and has made numerous "buys" of contrabrand.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Knappen and son James, and C. T. Fawcett motored Sunday to San Francisco where they called on Miss Wilma Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Gerome Rollin.

KIWANIS NOTES
By Heck

Norman Pendleton of Redwood City speaker corps was the interesting speaker at Kiwanis yesterday, taking for his theme "Where do we go from here?" Some say history repeats itself or that we travel in cycles. Mr. Pendleton conceded the possibility but stated the cycles were in spiral form by which humanity is surely rising. The conservation of the best is the result of human progress. He declared that the future true history will show the advance of the human race as a whole and not a procession of a few egoists.

Man began his rise by conquering the animal world and later turned to the cosmic forces which in turn he has conquered and is still conquering, in fact he has acquired the conquering habit.

His travel may carry him to the better day or destruction by the use of the very toys he has made through his conquests.

More and more is man becoming the cooperative instead of the competing individualist. Evidences are manifested on every side of the increased use of the golden rule.

The great problem now facing the world is "how to get the too much to the too many who have the too little with justice to all concerned."

Rev. Jos. Bennett was chairman of the hour.

Next meeting is "Agriculturist's Day" and a number of our community farmers are expected to be guests and a farm loan representative will speak on his work.

INFORMAL WATER MEET IN LOCAL OFFICE TONIGHT

Indiscriminate quotations of tall figures in connection with costs of water conservation in this vicinity was partly responsible for an informal meeting at G. E. Farley's office this evening. There the true figures were revealed, and future plans discussed by commissioners of the water conservation district.

Local organizations represented were the chamber of commerce, whose watter committee is headed by Guy Farley; Orchard City grange's civic affairs committee, which included Supervisor Joe McKinnon, William Coupland, S. N. Hedegard and Herbert Shadle, and the Tax League's water conservation committee, Messers. Finnemore, Barker and Henderson.

John Crummey of San Jose was expected to be present.

Wilbur Morton Injured

Mrs. Herold Morton and sons Richard and Wilbur, vacationing last week at their Capitola cottage, had their stay marred by an accident Saturday in which Wilbur broke an arm in a 20-foot fall over a cliff. Poison oak on the broken arm is complicating matters, according to Dr. Frank R. Anderson, who is keeping the young man in bed at the Morton home on Campbell avenue.
